

TIM SALISBURY

EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP
COACH

BACKGROUND

Tim specialises in helping individuals' transition into leaders at c-suite and other senior levels. He has 20 years coaching experience in large multinationals working globally across most sectors but predominantly in financial services, property and construction, FMCG and beverages. Clients describe Tim's approach as challenging, motivating, practical and fun. There is a sharp focus on results due to his commercial background and he is often used as a sounding board to discuss strategy.

Tim started his career in banking and held several senior positions before joining a coaching consultancy and running their financial services practice. He then set up his own executive coaching company managing his portfolio of clients and in addition, provides coaching support at London Business School for executive education programmes including the Executive MBA.

Areas of expertise: Transition to c-suite and senior executive roles, Leadership coaching, Onboarding, Communication and influence, Team coaching.
